CC-II: Constitutional Government and Democracy of India

This course acquaints the students with the constitutional design of state structures and institutions and their actual working overtime. The Indian constitution accommodates conflicting impulses within itself. The course stresses the embodiment of some of these conflicts in constitutional provisions and shows how those have played out political practice.

CC-III: Political Theory- Concerns and Debates

This course is divided into two sections. Section: A helps the students familiarise with the basic normative concepts of political theory. Each concept is related to a crucial political issue that requires analysis with the aid of any conceptual understanding. Section: B introduces the students to the important debates in the subject.

CC-IV: Political Process in India

This course maps the working of modern institutions, promised on the existence of an individualised society in a context marked by communication solidarities and their mutual transformation thereby. It also familiarises students with the working of the Indian state paying attention to the contradictory dynamics of modern state power.

CC-V: Introduction to Comparative Government and Politics

The purpose is to familiarise students with the basic concepts and approaches to the study of comparative politics. More specifically the course will focus on examining politics in a historical framework while engaging with various themes of comparative analysis in developed and developing countries.

CC-VI: Introduction to Public Administration

This paper encompasses public administration in its historical context with an emphasis on the various classical and contemporary administrative theories. The course also explores some of the recent trends including feminism and ecological conservation and how the call for greater democratisation is restructuring public administration. The course will also attempt to provide the students a comprehensive understanding on contemporary administrative developments.

CC-VII: Perspectives of International Relations

This paper seeks to equip students with the basic intellectual tools for understanding international relations. It introduces students to some of the most important theoretical approaches for studying international relations. A key objective of the course is to make students aware of the implicit Euro-centrism of international relations by highlighting certain specific perspectives from the Global South.

CC-VIII: Political Process and Institutions in Comparative Perspective

In this course students will be trained in the application of comparative methods to the study of politics. The course aims to introduce undergraduate student to some of the range of issues, literature and methods that cover comparative political.
